By Suncamper Motorhomes

Suncamper has released its newest model, the Sovereign Deluxe, at the Caravan, Camping, RV & Holiday Supershow in Sydney. The model features an island bed, separate toilet and shower and has an open floor plan. It is just over seven metres in length and driven with a car licence.

The Sovereign Deluxe is designed primarily for two people but can accommodate four. It has two double beds, neither of which needs setting up. Two seat belts are fitted in the motorhome, meaning four can travel at any time.

Keith, the owner of Suncamper, commissioned this motorhome for his personal use. He has owned many motorhomes and now his needs have changed with grandchildren and more time to travel. He proposed the layout and oversaw construction methods.

The cabin seats swivel making for a great conversation area. And the bed above the cab lifts up, opening the floor plan further and making the cab easily accessible.

The style of the interior and attention to detail are unique. It has thoughtful highlights like under-bench lighting so drawers are well lit and courtesy lights for the pathway from bed to toilet.

“Europe is currently at the forefront of motorhome design and product innovation in the global industry. The Sovereign Deluxe adopts European style with ruggedized construction methods specifically for Australian roads. Inspiration for this model was drawn from many areas, including modern architecture, superyacht interiors and my manufacturing experience in Europe.” – Cameron Harrison, manager at Suncamper and chief designer.

“The wall easily rotates moving the hand basin into your toilet area and maximising your shower space.”

One of the especially innovative features is the bathroom wall. The toilet and shower are separate and the hand basin sits in the shower area. Until of course you want to have a shower. The wall easily rotates moving the hand basin into the toilet area and maximising your shower space.

The Sovereign Deluxe is now available for order. For more information contact Suncamper on (02) 9484 3952.
